November 1861
Union Army Moves into the South
The Union army takes control of islands and coastal areas of South Carolina and Georgia, freeing enslaved African Americans and occupying plantations. Missionaries arrive to set up schools for slaves in Union territory.

1862

Railroad Expansion
Federal, state, and local governments begin distributing millions of acres of free land to railroads to encourage western expansion. By 1890, 180 million acres are given to railroad companies.

May 1862
Homestead Act
Congress passes the Homestead Act providing land in the West to farmers.

1863

January 1, 1863
Emancipation Proclamation
President Lincoln signs the Emancipation Proclamation, declaring that slaves in the Confederacy are “forever free” and making ex-slaves eligible to serve in the Union army.

December 8, 1863
Ten-Percent Plan
Lincoln announces his Ten-Percent Plan for Reconstruction: a Confederate state could be readmitted to the Union once 10% of its voters pledge loyalty to the United States.
July 1864

Wade–Davis Bill
In response to the Ten-Percent Plan, Radical Republicans pass the harsher Wade-Davis Bill. 50% of each state's voters would need to pledge loyalty for readmittance. Lincoln vetoes the bill.

November 8, 1864

Lincoln Reelected
President Lincoln is reelected.

January 12, 1865

Savannah Colloquy
General Sherman and Edwin Stanton meet with Garrison Frazier and the black community in Savannah. Originally a discussion about displaced ex-slaves, records reveal talk of African Americans' hopes and aspirations.

January 16, 1865

Special Field Order 15
Following the meeting in Savannah, Sherman issues Special Field Order 15. This sets aside over 400,000 acres of land to be divided into 40-acre parcels for freedpeople—the idea behind "40 acres and a Mule."

January 31, 1865

Thirteenth Amendment Approved
The Thirteenth Amendment, abolishing slavery and involuntary servitude except as punishment for a crime, is approved by Congress. States ratify the amendment by December.

March 1865

Freedmen’s Bureau Established
Congress establishes the Freedmen’s Bureau to aid refugees from the war, oversee confiscated and abandoned lands, assist freedpeople with their transition to freedom, and resolve disputes between freedpeople and white Southerners.
Reconstruction Era Timeline, 1861–1877

April 1865
Lincoln Assassinated
Confederate General Robert E. Lee surrenders on April 9. President Lincoln's last speech, on April 11, discusses Reconstruction and mentions black suffrage (primarily for black soldiers) for the first time. President Lincoln is shot at Ford's Theater on April 14. He dies on April 15.

May 1865
Johnson’s Presidential Reconstruction
President Andrew Johnson reveals his Presidential Reconstruction plan, which offers amnesty and restoration of property to most former Confederates.

Summer 1865
Special Field Order 15 Repealed
Land occupied by freedpeople, including land granted under Special Field Order 15, is confiscated and restored to its pre-war owners under President Reconstruction policies.

Fall 1865
“Black Codes”
Former Confederates are elected to political positions in Southern states. States hesitate to ratify the Thirteenth Amendment, refuse to give African Americans the right to vote, and enact “Black Codes” to reestablish strict control over freedpeople.

“Colored Conventions”
African Americans organize “Colored Conventions” across the South to demand the right to vote and to protest the Black Codes.

December 1865
New Session of Congress
President Johnson declares Reconstruction complete. As a new session of Congress convenes, outraged Republicans refuse to seat ex-Confederate legislators elected to Congress by Southern states.

Union Army Demobilized
The Union army is demobilized (from 1 million to 152,000 soldiers).

April 1865
Lincoln Assassinated
Confederate General Robert E. Lee surrenders on April 9. President Lincoln's last speech, on April 11, discusses Reconstruction and mentions black suffrage (primarily for black soldiers) for the first time. President Lincoln is shot at Ford's Theater on April 14. He dies on April 15.

May 1865
Johnson’s Presidential Reconstruction
President Andrew Johnson reveals his Presidential Reconstruction plan, which offers amnesty and restoration of property to most former Confederates.
Reconstruction Era Timeline, 1861–1877

1866

March 24, 1866
Favorable Judicial Decision in Alabama
In a court case in Alabama, a white man is convicted and fined for striking an African American woman. The judicial victory shows the potential for change in America.

April 1866
Civil Rights Bill
For the first time, Congress overrides a Presidential veto in order to pass the Civil Rights Bill. The bill grants equal rights and suffrage to all male persons in the United States except Native Americans.

May 1866
Racial Violence in Memphis
For three days, racial violence breaks out in Memphis, TN. As unfounded rumors of an African American riot spread throughout the city, several citizens join police and kill 49 people, including 46 African Americans.

February 1866
Veto of Freedmen’s Bureau Extension
President Andrew Johnson vetoes a Republican bill to extend the life of the Freedmen’s Bureau.

Lucy Tibbs Provides Testimony
Lucy Tibbs provides key testimony to the U.S. House Select Committee on the 1866 Memphis Riots and Massacres. Her brave witness helps lead to radical reconstruction and the passage of the Fourteenth Amendment.

Formation of American Equal Rights Association
Leading feminists and former abolitionists (including Susan B. Anthony and Frederick Douglass) form the American Equal Rights Association to promote equal rights for both women and black Americans.

Freed Persons Receive Wages
Some former slaves continue to work for their former owners but begin receiving pay.
June 13, 1866
Fourteenth Amendment Approved
Congress approves the Fourteenth Amendment, which gives citizenship to all people born or naturalized in the United States. Women are not included, outraging women's suffrage advocates. States ratify it within two years.

July 1866
Freedmen's Bureau Bill
Congress again passes a bill to extend the life of the Freedmen's Bureau. When Johnson vetoes it, Congress votes to override the veto with two-thirds majorities in both houses.

July 24, 1866
Tennessee Readmitted to the Union
Tennessee is the first Confederate state to be readmitted to the Union.

July 30, 1866
Riots in New Orleans
Rioting begins in New Orleans as a white mob assaults blacks and Radical Republicans going to a convention. A high number of casualties contributes to increased public support for Radical Republican positions.

August 1866
National Labor Union
60,000 people from a variety of small labor organizations meet in the first national congress of the National Labor Union. The convention launches a nationwide movement calling for government protections for workers.

August 28, 1866
Johnson's Speaking Tour
President Johnson begins a ruinous speaking tour (the “Swing around the Circle”) denouncing his Republican opponents and attacking freedpeople. Ulysses S. Grant and many other Johnson supporters turn against him.
Reconstruction Era Timeline, 1861–1877

1867

- July 1866
  - Republicans Win Majority in Both Houses
    - Campaigns for Congressional elections focus on the Fourteenth Amendment and civil rights. Republicans win greater than two-thirds majorities in both houses of Congress.
  - Union Army Further Demobilized
    - The Union army continues to be demobilized, with only 38,000 soldiers remaining in the South.

- March 2, 1867
  - Radical Reconstruction
    - A new session of Congress enacts four statutes known as the Reconstruction Acts. States are required to adopt new constitutions, allow African Americans to vote and hold office, and ratify the Fourteenth Amendment before they will be readmitted to the Union.

- April 1867
  - Union Leagues Mobilize Delegates
    - Southern Union Leagues start assembling black and poor white voters and candidates for delegates to state constitutional conventions. These conventions rewrite state constitutions to comply with the requirements of Radical Reconstruction.

- April 1867
  - Ku Klux Klan Founded
    - Tennessee becomes the birthplace of the Ku Klux Klan, the most extensive example of homegrown terrorism in American History according to historian Eric Foner.

- April 1867
  - Robert Smalls Leads Successful Boycotts in Philadelphia
    - A law permitting integrated streetcars in Philadelphia is passed after several years of mass boycotts led by Robert Smalls. An influential figure throughout Reconstruction, Smalls escaped slavery, became a Civil War hero, and secured five terms as a South Carolina congressman despite voter suppression.
July 31, 1867
Tenure of Office Act and Command of the Army Act
Congress passes Tenure of Office Act and Command of the Army Act to thwart President Johnson's plans to remove Secretary of War Edwin Stanton, a supporter of Radical Reconstruction.

August 11, 1867
Removal of Edwin Stanton
President Johnson removes Stanton and places Ulysses S. Grant temporarily in charge of the War Department.

October 1867
Treaty of Medicine Lodge
The US government signs this treaty with the Kiowa, Comanche, Apache, Cheyenne, and Arapaho, taking 90 million acres of traditional lands and relocating the tribes to a 3 million acre plot in what is today Oklahoma. The federal government hoped to bring Native Americans as close as possible to an “American” way of life.

1868
Anna Julia Cooper Attends School
Nine-year-old Anna Julia Cooper attends St. Augustine’s Normal School and Collegiate Institute in Raleigh, NC, an educational center for former slaves. Cooper petitions school officials to let her take classes only administered to boys. Among a number of accomplishments, Cooper was a teacher and principal, wrote a book, and helped establish several social justice organizations.

Election of Radical Republicans and African Americans
The Republican Party increases their majority in the US Senate, holding an unprecedented number of seats. Across the South, Radical Republicans including African-American men are elected to state and county governments. In South Carolina, African Americans make up a majority of the state legislature, a first for any state. Republican governments begin to transform parts of the South, including establishing the first public school system.

Moderate Republican Stalwarts
With Radical Reconstruction enacted, moderate Republicans (Stalwarts) begin to gain more influence over the Radicals in the Republican Party.
May 16, 1868
Johnson Impeached
Johnson is impeached by Congress (see Tenure of Office Act) for his removal of Edwin Stanton as Secretary of War, which violated the Tenure of Office Act. He is acquitted by one vote and subsequently does not receive the Democratic nomination for President.

May 1868
Treaty of Fort Laramie
US Government signs the Treaty of Fort Laramie with the Sioux, giving them the Black Hills Reservation in return for the safety of railroad crews.

June 15, 1868
Adelbert Ames
Appointed Governor of Mississippi
Adelbert Ames is appointed provisional governor of Mississippi, replacing Benjamin G. Humphreys, elected by white voters during President Johnson’s Reconstruction plan. Ames helped Republicans regain control of Mississippi, contributed to its rejoining the union, took strides to protect the rights of African Americans, and appointed black officials to positions of power.

June–July 1868
More Former Confederate States Readmitted to the Union
Arkansas, Louisiana, Florida, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Alabama are readmitted to the Union.

July 28, 1868
Fourteenth Amendment Ratified
After being bitterly contested, The Fourteenth Amendment is ratified by the required three-fourths of the states and officially becomes part of the US Constitution.

September 1868
Black Legislators Barred in Georgia
White Republicans joined with the Democrats in expelling three black senators and twenty-five black representatives in the lower house from the General Assembly. The following year, President Grant intervenes to reinstate them.

November 3, 1868
Grant Elected President
Ulysses S. Grant, Republican, is elected president with the campaign slogan “Let us have peace.” The defeated Democratic Party and its candidate, Horatio Seymour, literally ran on a white supremacists platform with slogans of “In Favor of a White Man’s Government” and “Opposed to Negro Suffrage and Negro Equality.” Black southerners cast more than 700,000 votes for Grant.
May 1869
Equal Rights Association Divided
The Equal Rights Association, an organization that campaigned for both black suffrage and women’s suffrage, is divided over whether or not to support the Fifteenth Amendment, which does not guarantee women the right to vote. Two new groups are formed: the National Woman Suffrage Association, which opposes the Fifteenth Amendment, and the American Woman Suffrage Association, which supports it.

September 1869
Racial Violence in the South
Violence against blacks intensifies across the South. Georgia legislator Abram Colby is kidnapped and whipped by members of the Ku Klux Klan.

April 1869
Texas v. White
In Texas v. White, the Supreme Court upholds Radical Reconstruction and declares secession illegal in a 5-3 conclusion.

February 26, 1869
Fifteenth Amendment
Congress passes the Fifteenth Amendment, giving African American men the right to vote. It isn’t ratified until February 3, 1870, and doesn’t begin to get fully realized until the modern civil rights movement. Through poll taxes, literacy tests, and other means, Southern states disenfranchise African Americans. The majority of African Americans aren’t registered to vote until the Voting Rights Act of 1965.

1869
Freedmen’s Bureau Builds Schools
By this date, the Freedmen’s Bureau builds and operates more than 3,000 schools with more than 150,000 students in the South. Previously, Southern States had no public school systems.
1870

January 26, 1870
Virginia Readmitted to the Union
Virginia is readmitted to the Union.

February 3, 1870
Fifteenth Amendment Ratified
28 States ratify the Fifteenth Amendment which will officially become part of the US Constitution when Secretary of State Hamilton Fish certified the amendment on March 30, 1870.

February 23, 1870
Mississippi Readmitted to the Union
Mississippi is readmitted to the Union.

February 28, 1870
Hiram Revels Becomes First African American Senator
Hiram Revels of Mississippi becomes the first African American to serve in the Senate. Other notable African American politicians during the period include former slave Blanche Kelso Bruce who became the second African American senator in 1874, and Pinckney Benton Stewart Pinchback, the first African American state governor in 1872.

March 30, 1870
Texas Readmitted to the Union
Texas is readmitted to the Union.

May 31, 1870
First Enforcement Act passed
Congress and President Grant respond to violence against African Americans in the South by enacting the Enforcement Act of 1870. The law makes it illegal to use violence, intimidation, or bribery to prevent someone from voting because of their race.

July 15, 1870
Georgia Readmitted to the Union
Georgia is the last state to be readmitted to the Union.
1871

Indian Tribes No Longer Recognized as Sovereign Nations
The US government no longer recognizes American Indian tribes as sovereign nations. The government confiscates 60% of their land over the next 30 years.

Democrats Retake Georgia
One year after Democrats regained majorities in Georgia's state legislature, Democrat James Smith is elected governor.

Fisk Jubilee Singers Go on Tour
The Fisk Jubilee Singers go on tour, raising money for Fisk University and contributing to the growth of Spiritual music.

February 1871
Second Enforcement Act Passed
Congress and President Grant enact the Enforcement Act of 1871, giving the federal government the power to oversee elections in Southern states.

April 1871
Ku Klux Klan Act Passed
Congress and President Grant enact the Ku Klux Klan Act, which authorizes the president to suspend the writ of habeas corpus and use military force to suppress Ku Klux Klan violence. It gives the federal, rather than state, government the right to prosecute Klan members or other individuals for depriving citizens of voting rights or equal protection of the law.

July 1871
Tammany Hall Exposed

October 8–10, 1871
Great Chicago Fire
The Great Chicago Fire kills hundreds and destroys 3.3 square miles of the city. Rumors that the fire was started by immigrants and/or communists and revolting workers spread rapidly. None of the rumors are true.

October 1871
Grant Fights Anti-black Violence
President Grant uses the powers granted to him by the Enforcement and Ku Klux Klan Acts to combat anti-black violence in the South. Klan members are put on trial through the following year, leading to the end of the organization for several decades.
May 1, 1872
Liberal Republicans Nominate Greeley
Liberal Republicans form in opposition to President Grant, who they blame for widespread government corruption and patronage. Declaring Reconstruction complete, they create a platform focused on reconciling the North and South and curbing government corruption. They nominate Horace Greeley, publisher of the New York Tribune for president. In July, Democrats also nominate Greeley.

May 22, 1872
Grant Signs Amnesty Bill
President Grant signs a new amnesty bill into law restoring the political rights of nearly all former Confederates who had lost the right to vote or hold office after the war. Only a few hundred former Confederates are excluded from political privileges.

July 1872
Democratic Convention
Democrats hold their convention and join the Liberal Republicans in nominating Horace Greeley for president.

September 5, 1872
Corruption in the Grant Administration
The New York Sun accuses Republican Vice President Schuyler Colfax, Vice Presidential nominee Henry Wilson, US Representative James Garfield, and several others of corruption in the Credit Mobilier scandal. News of the scandal increases public concern over corruption and power at all levels of government.

November 1872
Susan B. Anthony Arrested for Voting
Susan B. Anthony votes in the 1872 presidential election and is arrested because of her gender. She is later tried, convicted, and fined $100 for “the crime of having voted.”

Grant Reelected
Despite the scandals in his administration, President Grant is reelected over Horace Greeley.
March 1873
John Roy Lynch Becomes US Congressman
John Roy Lynch becomes one of seven African American members in the House of Representatives following a successful campaign in his Mississippi district. Born a slave in 1847, Lynch was a strong advocate for civil rights during three terms in Congress. He was later the keynote speaker at the 1884 Republican Convention, admitted to the Mississippi Bar, and published a book about Reconstruction.

April 1873
Slaughterhouse Case Gives Protection of Civil Rights to States
In a case involving the labor rights of white butchers, the Supreme Court rules that the protection of most civil rights is up to individual states and that the Fourteenth Amendment does not give the federal government the right to interfere. This has a profound effect on the rights of African Americans in the future, and enabled the enacting of Jim Crow Laws.

April 1873
Colfax Massacre
Conflict occurs between The White League, a paramilitary group organized by the Democratic Party, and the nearly all-black state militia in Colfax, LA. One hundred militia members are murdered in cold blood in what is remembered as the Colfax Massacre.

September 18, 1873
The Panic of 1873 Begins
A Wall Street banking firm crashes, causing the stock exchange to fail, and eventually resulting in widespread unemployment. This becomes known as the Panic of 1873, and lasts for the next three years.

Democrats Take Control in Texas and Virginia
Republicans are defeated in elections in Virginia and Texas as Democrats take control of the governments of both states.

New York Tribune Accuses Black Lawmakers of Corruption
The New York Tribune begins publishing articles accusing black lawmakers in South Carolina of corruption and incompetence. The charges are robustly refuted by black legislators in the state.
Reconstruction Era Timeline, 1861–1877

August 1874

The White League Murders Louisiana Republican Leaders

The White League assassinates 6 white Republican leaders and 5–20 freedpeople in a massacre in Coshhatta, Louisiana.

Congress Passes the Page Act

In response to fears of Chinese immigrants infringing upon American jobs and economic security, Congress passes the Page Act. It limits immigration of groups considered to be “undesirable,” particularly from China. Despite Chinese immigrants making up less than 2% of the immigrant population, Congress further restricts immigration from China with the passage of the Chinese Exclusion Act in 1882.

The Mississippi Plan

Democrats start the “Mississippi Plan,” using intimidation and violence to sway elections and reclaim power in the Mississippi state government.

1874

Public Opinion of Radical Reconstruction Shifts

Public opinion continues to shift against Radical Reconstruction as a result of (1) fading animosity between North and South as “war fever” dissipates, (2) concern over political corruption, (3) economic depression, and (4) racism of white Northerners and Southerners alike.

Democrats Gain Control in Alabama and Arkansas

Alabama and Arkansas hold elections amidst violence and intimidation against freedpeople and Republican leaders. Republican state governments are defeated and Democrats resume control.

1875

Democrats Regain Control in the House

Democrats regain control of the House of Representatives in a landslide election.
March 1, 1875
Civil Rights Bill of 1875
The Civil Rights Bill of 1875 is passed by Congress and signed by President Grant as one of the last acts under Republican leadership. This bill prohibits segregation in public facilities. The Supreme Court strikes it down in 1883.

March 1876
U.S. v. Cruikshank
In U.S. v. Cruikshank, the Supreme Court overturns the convictions of three perpetrators of the Colfax Massacre (see April 1873) and rules that the parts of the Enforcement and Ku Klux Klan Acts that enable the federal government, rather than states, to prosecute individuals for crimes are unconstitutional. According to the court, the federal government can only act against states, not individuals.

Democrats Use Violence to Regain Control
Using methods similar to the “Mississippi Plan,” Democrats in South Carolina, North Carolina, Louisiana, and Florida take back control.

May 1875
Whiskey Ring
Several government officials appointed by President Grant, as well as his personal secretary and other advisers, are indicted for participating in the Whiskey Ring bribery scandal.
1877

The Workingman’s Party of California Releases Platform
The Workingman’s Party of California, a labor group, releases its platform. The document proposes increased taxation of wealthy individuals and the destruction of land monopolies in the face of the country’s growing economic inequity. The platform also calls to rid the country of “cheap Chinese labor.”

March 4, 1877
Rutherford Hayes Elected President
After a close and disputed election in which both candidates, Republican Rutherford B. Hayes and Democrat Samuel Tilden, declared victory, Hayes is declared the victor. In order to ease tensions with Democrats, Hayes and the Republicans agree to abandon Reconstruction policies and remove the few remaining federal troops from the South.

April 1877
Reconstruction Officially Ends
Reconstruction policies officially end, with the South enforcing and ingraining segregation. Black civil rights won’t hold the nation’s attention again until after World War II.

Reconstruction Era Timeline, 1861–1877
For more resources on the Reconstruction era and to get our unit The Reconstruction Era and the Fragility of Democracy, visit www.facinghistory.org/reconstruction-era.